Flush your taps

Research carried out by the Institute of Environmental Science and the Ministry of Health has shown some New Zealand water supplies contain minute traces of lead. These traces are near to or sometimes exceed maximum acceptable levels specified in the New Zealand Drinking Water Standards.

Traces of metals, in particular lead, are of concern because over time they pose a potential health risk, especially if consumed from childhood.

The lead does not come from the water supply, but from metals in some household fittings that may be dissolved into the water. The amount of lead that will dissolve from a fitting depends on the type of water, water temperature, composition of the plumbing fittings and how long the water has been in contact with it.

New Zealand waters are of very good quality and contain little dissolved substances and that contributes to their plumbosolvency (the ability of the water to dissolve the lead). The Ministry of Health recommends people do not drink the first mugful of water if their tap has not been used for several hours overnight, for instance.

Instead, run the tap for a couple of seconds to flush away any water contaminants.

Making Irrigation Pay – Managing Within Limits

Irrigation NZ invites irrigators to attend this free workshop

Thursday 11 October 2012

Hororata
1.00pm – 4.00pm

Hororata Hall, Corner of Duncans & Hororata Roads.

Given the National Policy Statement on water, what is the state of the Environment in your catchment?

- How will the proposed Canterbury Land & Water Regional Plan set the framework for managing within limits?
- How is Environment Canterbury working with irrigators?

Managing within limits: What does it mean for irrigators?

- Will your practices need to change?
- If so, how?
- What are the tools & knowledge available to meet this challenge?
- Where are the gaps?

There will be plenty of local content, group discussion and question time. This session will introduce irrigators to practical ideas, technology and tools to take back to their own farming system.

For further programme and speaker information go to www.irrigationnz.co.nz We look forward to having you join us.
