New families welcomed at citizenship ceremony

A long road from Nigeria to Rolleston ended in happiness for the Iposu family as they were welcomed as New Zealand citizens. The Iposu family were among nine new New Zealanders from Nigeria, the Philippines and Nepal, who were sworn in at the latest citizenship ceremony held in the Council chambers. Sade Iposu, from Rolleston, said it had been a long journey to citizenship, but the family couldn't be happier. "We're so grateful, so happy, so pleased—at last." Mrs Iposu said her husband first moved to New Zealand in 2003 to complete his PhD at Lincoln University and the family joined him in 2005. Mrs Iposu, a micro-biologist by training, got a job with the Canterbury District Health Board and was later able to retrain as a nurse. The family loved Selwyn and had built a house in Faringdon, Mrs Iposu said. They had felt welcomed by people, with great friends who supported her through working and looking after four children when her husband had to return to Nigeria for a time.

After a delay with their residency application the family were delighted to officially be New Zealanders. "We have been so blessed to have a Kiwi family who were so welcoming and lovely and said this is your home too," Mrs Iposu said. "It's not an easy journey, but what I have learned along the way is you just have to focus and never give up."

Feedback sought on new Leeston facility

The Council is planning a new community facility for Leeston and is now seeking feedback on possible ways that it could be best utilised. The Council's Long-Term Plan 2018-2028 (LTP) process indicated a modern fit-for-purpose community facility was required to meet the growing needs of the Leeston community. This led to Council adding the project to the LTP. Open Space and Property manager Mark Rykers says the project is at its very early stages. Council is speaking with the community to first understand what the needs of the community actually are. "In this first stage of public feedback, we're wanting to know the types of activities which people in the community see themselves doing in the facility," he says. "This will give us a better idea of what kind of building could be built to accommodate those activities and how it would be used." "There will be plenty of opportunities to provide feedback on the facility, and we will have a formal public consultation process when the project develops. I would like to thank the Leeston community for its positivity and enthusiasm at this early stage of the project."

Have your say

Feedback closes at 5pm on Monday 6 May. For more information and to complete the feedback form go to selwyn.govt.nz/newleestonfacility. Hardcopy feedback forms are available at the Leeston Library and Community Centre.
