

Figure 12: Forestry development and shelterbelts on the lower Port Hills, north of Otahuna Valley

Exotic plantations, while based on natural elements, reflect significant human modifications to the landscape.

As a consequence the landscape falls below the threshold of naturalness required for s6(b) significance. No landscape aspects of outstanding significance are apparent on these lower slopes.